Friday 22nd May

Following the once near extinction of the entire parish populace, the village of Pucklechurch has enjoyed centuries of idyllic existence.

For several centuries ever since, as the village re-grew, life for the inhabitants has been without major incident, with little in the way to rock the boat; life for the residents of the village of Pucklechurch could be described as tranquil.

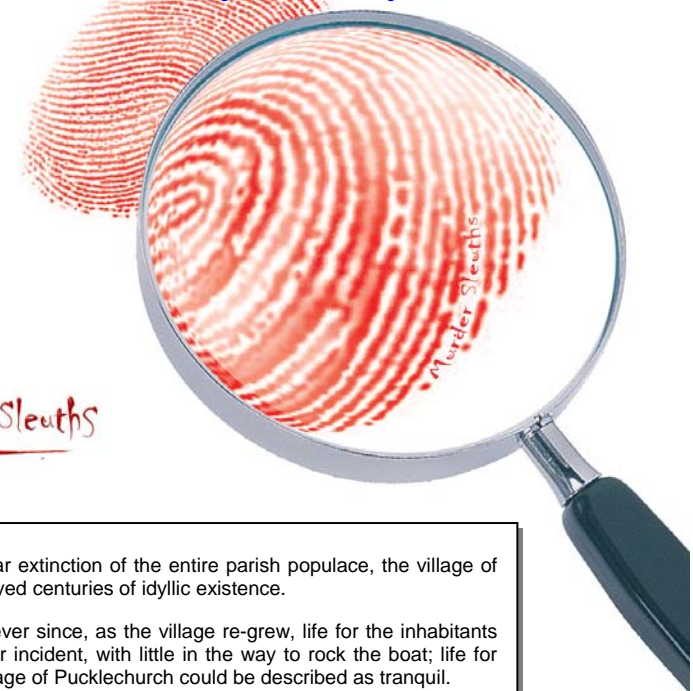

With villagers seemingly enjoying good health; it has been noted as being one of the healthiest places in England to live.

The perfect English village; that is until recent events brought to the fore a disturbing series of events; now things have taken a turn for the worse... Hitherto, the particularly serene life in the village of Pucklechurch has always erroneously been attributed to the adherence to the allegorical folklore of The Curse of Martha Corey.
